DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 19, 28, 36, 42, 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 19, 28, 36, 42, 43 are unclear in reciting "A conveyor idler having...a conveyor belt". As the claim is generally narrative in form, the exact limitations to be given patentable weight are unclear. Does the conveyor idler have/comprise a conveyor belt? As written the claim is unclear. Perhaps the invention is drawn to an apparatus or system that comprises an idler and a conveyor belt.

The examiner suggests rewriting the claim in accordance with CFR 1.75(i), where each element of the claim is be separated by a line indentation.

Additionally, the examiner suggests clearly separating the preamble from the body of the claim, through use of a colon, so as to aid in clarifying those elements that are to be given patentable weight.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 19-43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hagerman et al. USP 4314631 in view of Maurer USP 4548316.

Hagerman disclose a similar device comprising a (n):

- Idler (32) having an outer surface and an inner surface (C2/L39-42)
- Conveyor belt (12)
- Shaft (36)
- Frame (fig. 1)
- Braking mechanism (C2/L39-42) for preventing the idler from rotating in the reverse direction

While Hagerman does indeed disclose a braking mechanism inside the idler (32), he does not disclose the Braking mechanism comprising at least one brake element which can move between a first position in which the idler can rotate in the forward direction, and a second position in which the brake element prevents the idler from rotating in the reverse direction.

Art Unit: 3651

Mauer teaches the use of a similar braking mechanism (fig. 5) comprising at least one brake element (62) for the purpose of providing for a means to provide for a one-way clutch that prevents reverse rotation of a roller (abstract)

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have employed the use of a brake element, as taught by Mauer, in the device of Hagerman for the purpose of providing for a means to provide for a one-way clutch that prevents reverse rotation of a roller.

Re clms 20-27, 29-35, 37-41 it would have been obvious to have employed the use of a brake guide secured to a shaft, brake guide having an outer surface with a plurality of recess each having a brake surface, said brake element is a ball bearing or a roller bearing, a key and keyway, in view of Mauer who teaches a brake guide (61) secured to a shaft (60), brake guide having an outer surface with a plurality of recess (brake element 62 sits in recess) each having a brake surface (65), said brake element (62) is a ball bearing or a roller bearing, and also teaches a key and keyway (fig. 5) for the purpose of providing for a means to prevent reverse directional movement of a roller.
